Trial of Lifeboats.

The committee appointed to examine lifeboats met at the life-saving station at Lewes, Del., on the 28th of April to examine boats ordered there for trial. On the afternoon of that day Capt. F. L. Norton arrived from Philadelphia with his steam launch and two of his boats in tow, one boat 22 feet and the other 26 feet long. On the 29th the weather was stormy, the wind blowing with a velocity of forty-six miles au hour, with a rough sea. About two o'clock p. m. Capt. Norton, at the request of the committee, went out with his 26 foot boat under sail. As the force of the wind gave him an unlooked for opportunity to show the great stability, buoyancy, and selfrighting power of boats built upon his sys tem, he determined to take advantage of it consequently he spread much more canvas than would have been justifiable with any other form of construction; the consequences were that as soon as the boat was fairly ex posed to the full force of the wind she was consect to farmish the trade with Fish in by the barrel, half barrel and kits. In the business for a long time, sink they can give entire satisfaction to an may favor them with their orders, honse at the corporation fish wharf, No. 3, honse at the corporation fish wharf, No. 3. full pressure of the wind. Captain Norton repeated this experiment several times, showing clearly that his boats when thrown on their beam ends would not capsize, but would always and at any time immediately come upright whenever relieved from a por-tion of the pressure which carried them

> After experimenting for a time in this manner, Captain Norton ran his boat, full of water as she was, on to the beach through the surf. She struck the beach stem on and was swung around by the sea broadside to the shore, but she never for a moment left an even keel, but was gradually lifted by the seas in an upright position till she was well upon the beach and her crew were within jumping distance of dry ground, Captain Norton was fortunate in meeting with such an opportunity to show the won-derful bouyaney and stability of his boats, and showed his foresight and confidence by his prompt acceptance of it. Had he made any mistake regarding the powers and senworthy qualities of his boat his position would have been a very serious one. His boat would have been capsized and his claims and possibly his life lost. We venture to say that no other inventor of lifeboats has ever subjected his boat successfully to such an ordeal. On the following day, the 30th, the 22-foot Norton boat was capsized by order of the committee with tackles, to test her self-righting qualities. She laid bottom up on the water several times but always righted immediately the same way she went over as soon as relieved. Her lightness and speed when propelled by oars was then tried, and the result fully justified

Captain Norton's claim in this regard.

Our reporter, who witnessed all the experiments, is fully convinced that these trials clearly establish the fact that the Norton's claim is the second of the convinced that the Norton's clearly establish the fact that the Norton's claim is the second of the convenience of the ton system of construction affords all the security and efficiency that the inventor NO - KING CORNER OF ROYAL STREET, claims, and that its general adoption will be the means or saving thousands of lives and a great boon to humanity. Let pleasure boats, yachts and passenger steamers be constructed on Captain Norton's system, and the loss of life from human drowning will be reduced ninety per cent.

The Captain has returned with his little the Capitali has resulted with its little steamer and boats to Alexandria, where he is establishing the boat and shipbuilding works of the Norton Ship-Building Company of Virginia and West Virginia, and where boats and vessels upon the Norton Capitalian Company and Capitalian Company and Capitalian Company and Capitalian Capital system will hereafter he constructed. Fur-ther trials will shortly take place on the river at Alexandria, when the members of the press and others will be invited to attend .- Washington Hatchet.

SENSATIONAL SHOOTING AFFAIR.-J. B. Hotchkiss, a young man about thirty years BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, Ayer's Cherry Pec-toral, Sarsaparilla, Hair Vigor, Ague Cure and Pills, and Warner's Kidney and Liver Cure firm at Nashville, Tenn., was badly wound-ed Saturday night in a difficulty next door to the house of his mistress. He and the owners of the premises upon which he had entered to get a bucket of water, had warm words, which resulted in a resort to pistols. Five shots were exchanged, at short range. Hotchkiss was shot in the side, and a bullet perforated his hat. The other man, whose name is Wilhelm, was not struck. The wounded man walked to the room of his mistress, who lives on the suburbs of the city in strict retirement, and two physicians were summoned. Every effort was made to conceal his identify, he going so far as to beg to be removed out of the city in his precarious condition, which was out of the question. His physicians were put under oath to conceal his name, but were unable to prevent the press from discovering it. The news created great excitement. Hotchkiss is a handsome, wealthy and popular man, and strong in financial circles, as as in society, where he is a leader in fashionable circles. He was engaged to a beautiful young lady, a member of one of the proudest families in the State. His condition is such that be cannot be removed to his residence, and he now lles at the home
